COUNSEL FOR THE GENERAL COUNSEL'S MOTION TO CLARIFY AND CORRECT THE ADMINISTRATIVE RECORD

Pursuant to Section 102.24(a) of the Rules and Regulations of the National Labor Relations Board (the Board), Counsel for the General Counsel (Counsel) files this Motion to Clarify and Correct the Administrative Record.

Counsel moves to clarify and correct the following in the administrative record:

1. General Counsel's Exhibit 24 shall be removed from the record.
2. New General Counsel's Exhibit 24 shall be document attached as Attachment A to this Motion.
3. General Counsel Exhibit 25 shall be removed from the record.
4. New General Counsel Exhibit 25 shall be document attached as Attachment B to this Motion.
5. General Counsel Exhibit 107 shall be admitted into evidence.
6. General Counsel Exhibit 107 shall be removed from the Rejected Exhibit File.

All parties have been notified of the above clarifications and corrections to the administrative record and do not have objection.

• Shirley Chisholm (1924 - 2005)

Congress is more diverse now than it's ever been. However, when Chisholm was attempting to shatter the glass ceiling, the same couldn't be said. During the racially contentious period in the late '60s, she became the first Black woman elected to Congress. She represented New York's 12th District from 1969 to 1983, and in 1972, she became the first woman to run for the Democratic Party's presidential nomination. Her campaign slogan: "Unbought and Unbowed!" rings even louder today. Senator Kamala Harris recently paid tribute to Chisholm in her presidential campaign announcement by using a similar logo to Chisholm's.

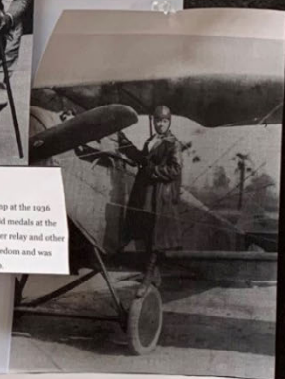

• Claudette Colvin (1939 - )

Before Parks refused to give up her seat on a bus in Montgomery, Alabama in 1955, there was a brave 15-year-old who chose not to sit at the back of the bus. That young girl was Colvin. Touting her constitutional rights to remain seated near the middle of the vehicle, Colvin challenged the driver and was subsequently arrested. She was the first woman to be detained for her resistance. However, her story isn't nearly as well known as Parks'.

• Jesse Owens (1913 - 1980)

Owens was a track-and-field athlete who set a world record in the long jump at the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin—and went undefeated for 25 years. He won four gold medals at the Olympics that year in the 100- and 200-meter dashes, along with the 100-meter relay and other events off the track. In 1976, Owens received the Presidential Medal of Freedom and was posthumously awarded the Congressional Gold Medal in 1990.

• Bessie Coleman (1892 - 1926)

Despite being the first licensed Black pilot in the world, Coleman wasn't recognized as a pioneer in aviation until after her death. Though history has favored Amelia Earhart over the Wright brothers, Coleman—who went to flight school in France in 1921—paved the way for a new generation of diverse fliers like the Tuskegee women, Blackbirds, and Flying Hobos.

• Dr. Rebecca Lee Crumpler (1831 - 1895)

Rebecca Lee Crumpler was the first Black female doctor in the United States. After attending the prestigious Massachusetts private school West-Newton English and Classical School, she worked as a nurse for eight years until applying to medical school in 1860 at the New England Female Medical College. She was accepted and would go on to graduate four years later. Though little is known of her career, PBS reported that she worked as a physician for the Freedmen's Bureau for the State of Virginia. She later practiced in Boston's predominantly Black neighborhood at the time, Beacon Hill, and published A Book of Medical Discourses in Two Parts.

• Ruby Bridges (1954 - )

Bridges probably had no idea that the bold act she committed in 1960 would set off a chain reaction leading to the integration of schools in the South. She was just six years old when she became the first African American student to attend William Frantz Elementary in Louisiana at the height of desegregation. She is now the chair of the Ruby Bridges Foundation, which was founded in 1990 to promote "the values of tolerance, respect, and appreciation of all differences."

• Marsha P. Johnson (1945 - 1992)

Before the Paris documentary brought Johnson's story to life with the documentary, The Paris and Life of Marsha P. Johnson by David France, many people were unfamiliar with its influential role she had on drag and queer culture. Johnson, a Black trans woman and activist, was at the forefront of the LGBTQ movement. In addition to being the co-founder of STAR, it was also the forefront of the LGBTQ youth. Johnson also fought for equality through the organization that honored homeless queer youth, Johnson also fought for equality through the Gay Liberation Front.

• Jane Bolin (1908 - 2007)

A pioneer in law, Jane Bolin was the first Black woman to attend Yale Law School in 1931. In 1939, she became the first Black female judge in the United States, where she served for 35 years. One of her significant contributions throughout her career was working with private employers to hire people based on their skills, as opposed to discriminating against them because of their race. She also served on the boards of the NAACP, Child Welfare League of America, and the Neighborhood Children's Center.
